Staybehind Agent Training Sanuals

REF:

MUTAL-10410

- 1. This memorandum deals primarily with Para. 2(b) of reference memorandum. You will recall that you discussed in this paragraph the need for stayochind agent training namuals in the German language.
- 2. As a result of come inquiry at headquarters, there seems to be some possibility that manuals of this sort, at least to a limited extent, can be made available to you some time within the next six months. One of the men in the Training Division is now engaged in translating some of the staybehind manuals into German. While these translations might not be entirely suitable for German agents from the standpoint of either a given local situation or ideological orientation - since the manuals are prepared mainly for case officers - they may nevertheless serve as a basis for training documents which could be modified by the field according to the particular need.
- There is also this possibility: While the development of manuals in the German language is primarily a task for headquarters, it is felt here that the field might be able to utilize a trusted agent with a good command of English for the translation of some of the manuals already in your possession. Or, as a corollary to this, an agent might be utilized to give a more German orientation to the translations being prepared here. Is there any possibility that CALARUS 3 could take on such an assignment?
- 4. With report to Para, 2(a) of reference memorandum, some progress has in obtaining a list of targets for staybehind been made by operations. It is true that this particular list consists of present target considerations and is not therefore too relevant to conditions after general feeling here is still that the field should either try to obtain a list of targets from EUCOM or make out its own list of targets and then submit same to MICOM for concurrence.
